Institute of Logistics and Transport

CORONAVIRUS (COVID-19) OFFICIAL UPDATES

STRONGER TOGETHER

Our future as an Institute will be defined by how we respond to the Covid-19 pandemic.

Rather than reacting to the crisis by closing our scheduled programmes of events and activities, we need to regard the situation as a challenge to be addressed in every single CILT branch and country. If we want to survive as an Institute it is vital that we embrace the challenge and remain active and relevant for our members. We have to re-evaluate our activities, innovate, be creative and find new ways of doing things.

As the leading international professional body for everyone who works within supply chain, logistics and transport we have an ongoing responsibility to support our members, our colleagues and our industry, and play our part helping the world get through the challenging times ahead.

In this way we will ensure that we continue to lead the profession and provide value to our members throughout the crisis period and beyond. Indeed, it may well be that digital or online solutions which we are trialling now become the new 'normal' moving forwards.

To this end we are focusing on our strengths of collaboration, connectivity, and sharing to generate content internationally which can be used by branches to engage locally both with their members and the profession.

We have also shared suggestions on how branches should be adapting their communications, activities and events in our initial Marketing Response to Covid19 document (attached)

We know that there have been some great initiatives in some of our countries, but also have concern that activity levels have fallen considerably in some other regions.

Our President Dato' Ts Abd Radzak Abd Malek is therefore keen to understand the following:

- How central materials are being used locally
- How branches have adapted their practices and activities in response to the crisis.

To assist with this task we ask you to consider the attached questionnaire and provide your responses to ceri.williams@ciltinternational.org by Tuesday 5 May latest. As our response to this crisis is critical to the future of our Institute the President requests a full and timely response from every CILT branch.

Please provide details of any other activities you are undertaking	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. A concept paper was done and presented to the Presidential task force for their consideration and implementation covering the Informal sectors (such as Construction workers, house aides who earn a daily wage) and house hold personnel who are impacted by the lockdown and will come out in large numbers when the curfew / lockdown is lifted in the near future. The subcommittee that drafted the concept paper felt that the Public sector and Public sector needs were well covered by the existing government policies but the Informal sector and House hold personnel needs had to be further covered.</li> <li>2. A free webinar was arranged by the Education subcommittee, which was open to all the CILT, members under the theme “Reboot yourself”. Covering the topic of re-inventing your self during the lockdown. This was Presented by a well-known inspirational speaker Mr. Rukmal De silve, CEO of 361 degrees.</li> <li>3. Webinars are being planned to cover the areas of Shipping, Aviation and supply chain management, which will be rolled out in the weeks to come. We are exploring the possibilities of generating a income to CILT-SL from the attendees of these webinars after few free webinars.</li> <li>4. CILT Ideathon was launched to collect ideas from Groups and Members of CILT and external sources to contribute ideas in managing the supply chain and transport needs during the Covid -19 crisis. This was quite successful with 52 entries coming in and an eminent panel selected by CILT judged the ideas. The winners will receive recognition for their efforts at the CILT awards and also investors will be found for implementing the ideas. CILT intends to develop an incubator to support these ideators in the future.</li> <li>5. Policy Watch – Uploading all local and international guidelines and links in the web site</li> </ol>
